

CORHIO Sender Services

Contribute data to the community

CORHIO can help you electronically deliver test results and other critical patient information to community physicians and care providers. This not only helps transitions of care and avoidable readmissions, it also reduces medical records requests, which frees up staff to focus on more challenging tasks. CORHIO can also help you eliminate the need for your own point-to-point data interfaces.

Supporting Risk-Based Payment Models

Making test results – and other important patient information – quickly and easily available to physicians and other providers outside your organization is not only vital to patient care but also essential for success in value-based care payment models and accountable care organization (ACO) partnerships.

Seamless Data Delivery to Other Providers

CORHIO can help you deliver the following data types to community providers:

- Laboratory and pathology results
- Imaging and radiology reports
- ADT information
- Transcription notes
- Care summary documents

We can also set up automatic reporting of your data to public health including reportable conditions (electronic lab reporting), immunizations, cancer registry, and syndromic surveillance.

Use CORHIO Sender Services to:

- Exchange data with physicians and other clinicians and avoid building costly point-to-point EHR interfaces
- Streamline access to patient history information, especially important for emergency department clinicians
- Reduce administrative costs related to personnel time managing medical records and requests for copies of patient charts
- Improve quality and coordination of patient care

“Connecting Centura Health’s electronic health record to CORHIO’s HIE allows us to improve healthcare value through better coordination of care. By linking physicians, clinics, hospitals, long-term care facilities, and home care services, we are ultimately touching more Coloradans and contributing collectively to sustaining the health of our state for generations to come.”

Dana Moore, former SVP/CIO and Managing Director, Centura Health
